ECM31 user area guidelines

All the participants of the ECM31 shall have a unique email address and password to log in the personal user area of the ECM31 website. This includes regular participants under any category, invited speakers, chairs of Microsymposia as well as accompanying persons. The only exception is the registration of children; This will be done directly from their mother or father user area.

Gender and professional status are required for statistics. The ECM31 has set up a number of initiatives to ensure gender balance and promote the involvement of women in crystallography at all stages of their career. One of them is to make a basic observation of the crystallographic community. Therefore, we need to analyze the composition of the ECM participants in order to deliver, for the future, unbiased ratios that should be respected. More specifically, at the ECM31 we will count the number of attendees of each gender and relate these numbers with their professional status (i.e. students, post-doc, PI, etc).

Your affiliation/institution will be used in your identification badge and in your submitted abstracts.

Your email address and password will be your identifier to log in the ECM31 user area. Therefore, it is very important that you use an existing e-mail address. This will be also used for all future communication with the ECM31. After signing up you will receive a Welcome email from ECM31 Oviedo with your log in details.

You will now be able to log in the ECM31 user area (http://ecm31.ecanews.org/en/user-area.php) using your email address and password.

The user area

From your personal user area you will be able to: Edit our personal information; Edit your addresses; Submit your abstract on-line and check it status; Register for the ECM31; Register for the satellite meetings; Buy tickets (conference dinner, excursions, late abstract submission, etc); Download invoices and certificates.

Please note that some of the functionalities are not available yet and will be activated later on the year.
